Airport

Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla Guadalajara International Airport (IATA code: GDL, ICAO code: MMGL), built in 1966, is located 16 kilometers from downtown Guadalajara metropolitan area and the third busiest airport in Mexico. It is located 17 kilometers south of the city of Zapopan, Jalisco via the Guadalajara-Chapala Highway, and 15 kilometers north of the town of Chapala, the site of Mexico's largest freshwater lake of the same name.

Telephone: (52 33) 36 88 52 48.

On your arrival at the airport, you will find our volunteers and an information center to help you with anything you need.

Climate

Climate: Warm sub-humid Temperature: 20.5 °C annual average Location: Pacific Coast The climate in Guadalajara metropolitan area is extremely varied. It is hot during the day with rain at night. In December the temperature is approximately 25 °C on average. We suggest bringing a sweater to wear in the evenings.

Time zone

Mexico uses three time zones, ocially known as the Northwest, Pacific and Central zones. There is a one-hour diference between the Northeast and Pacific zones and between the Pacific and Central zones. Guadalajara metropolitan area uses the (UTC-06:00) time zone, as do Mexico City and Monterrey Daylight saving time begins on the first Sunday in April and ends on the last Sunday in October in most of the country. During this period, clocks are turned back an hour. Sonora is the only state in Mexico that does not observe Daylight Saving Time.

Water

It is advisable to drink only bottled water to the constant maintenance work on the country's water pipes.

Telecommunications

Letters and postcards

If you wish to send a letter or a postcard, you can ask for help at the front desk of your hotel.

Telephones

Public phones operate with prepaid cards that can be purchased at newsstands or at certain convenience stores (you'll see a sign outside saying: LADATEL de venta aquí). The cards come in 20-, 30-, 50- or 100-peso denominations. Phones that say "LADA" allow you to make long distance calls; for local calls, those operated by TELMEX offer the best rates.

Calling Mexico from abroad:

To call a Mexican landline from abroad, dial Mexico's country code (52), the landline's area code and then the local number. All landlines carry ten digits after the country code. The major phone companies are Telmex, Axtel, Izzi, Movistar, Alestra, Maxcom and Megacable.

Example: To call Guadalajara, dial:
52 + 33 + xxx xxxx

To call a Mexican cell phone from abroad, dial the country code (52) followed by the digit (1), the area code, and then the cell phone number. All cell phones carry 11 digits after the country code (52). Movistar, Telcel, Iusacell and Unefon are the cell phone service providers in Mexico.

For example:

To call a cell number in Guadalajara, dial:
52 + 1 + 33 + xxx xxxx

Calling another country from Mexico:

To call another country from Mexico from a phone booth or landline, dial the international exit code (00), followed by the country code. Example: For the United States, dial (1), followed by the area code and then the local number. You will have to dial a total of 13 digits.

Example: Calling from Mexico City to Los Angeles, California:

00 + 1 + 213 + xxx xxxx

Voltage and sockets

In Guadalajara metropolitan area, the electric current is 110 volts and 60 cycles and the sockets are designed for flat pins. It is the same voltage used in the United States and Canada. If you have appliances that run on 220 volts, you can request an adapter at the hotel reception.

Currency

The Mexican peso is the currency of Mexico (MXN). Exchange rates are available in all the daily newspapers, followed by the US dollar exchange used in international commercial transactions. Money and traveler's' checks, especially in US dollars, can be exchanged at most banks, exchange bureaus and hotels. All major credit cards (Visa, MasterCard and American Express) are accepted at almost all commercial establishments in Mexico.

Banks

Banks are open from 9:00 to 16:00 Monday through Friday and closed at weekends and on public holidays. ATMs are open 24 hours a day and are available throughout the city for major credit cards (Visa, Mastercard and American Express).

Tipping

In Mexico, it is customary to leave a tip as a thank you to waiters, valets, gasoline dispensers, bellboys and other service providers. In restaurants, bars and cafes, it is customary to leave 10 percent of the total bill; if the service was very good, you can leave up to 15 percent. Some restaurants and bars include the tip in the final bill, so look carefully so as not to overpay. Not tipping is frowned upon.

Transport

In Guadalajara metropolitan area, there are buses, taxis and rental cars (available at the airport).

Approximate cost of transportation and distance:

By taxi from the airport to downtown, the Palace of Culture and Communication (PALCCO), Zapopan, Jalisco, México and the official hotel area.

Typical Food

Guadalajara metropolitan area has a variety of typical dishes such as tamales (corn dough with a variety of fillings) tostadas (fried corn dough with toppings), sopes (oval tortillas topped with beans and vegetables), enchiladas (meat or cheese wrapped in tortilla and covered with sauce), flautas (deep-fried, tube-shaped tortillas filled with chicken) and frijoles charro (beans with pork, tomatoes, onion and cilantro, served as a soup).

But the following dishes distinguish it from the rest of the country:

Tejuino, a refreshing drink made from corn that can be found in many parts of the city. Remember to order it with lemon sorbet, a tradition in hot weather.

Jericalla is a typical Guadalajara Metropolitan Area dessert. Made from milk, eggs, vanilla, cinnamon and sugar, it is a great way to round off a meal after a torta ahogada or tacos.

A torta ahogada is one of Guadalajara Metropolitan Area's signature dishes. It is a bun filled with chopped fried pork or beef, served partly or completely smothered in sauce or on its own. Don't leave town without trying one.

Pozole is a typically Mexican dish and since Jalisco is part of Mexico, Guadalajara Metropolitan Area's cuisine naturally features its own version of this dish made from hominy and meat, served with lettuce, onion and lemon to taste.

Las Cazuelas is a drink traditionally served at El Parián de Tlaquepaque. Its ingredients include grapefruit, lemon, orange, grapefruit soda and, depending on your age or mood, a glass of tequila.

Tequila, Mexico's social drink has its origin in Tequila, Jalisco, not far from Guadalajara Metropolitan Area. Due to its proximity to the city, tequila is not only a tradition among Guadalajara Metropolitan Area's residents, known as Tapatíos, but in many other parts of the country and the world.

El raspado: the world.

El raspado: There are several traditional places where you can get a raspado (flavored ice shavings) either on its own or with a delicious topping. The most famous ones are Raspados Morán (near the Glorieta Chapalita) or Raspados Jalisco known as "the ones from Parque Morelos").

Horchata (rice water flavored with sugar and cinnamon) is very refreshing and even better if you add strawberries. This beverage is available at many restaurants (small or large) in the city to accompany some of the dishes mentioned in this list.

Birria is a dish of goat meat or beef cooked in a sauce flavored with several kinds of spices and chilies and then baked in an oven. This culinary delight is originally from Jalisco.

Carne en su jugo is a stew made from beef, chopped and roasted in its own juice, boiled beans and previously fried bacon bits. This traditional Jalisco dish was added at your request.
